SAFETY COVERS

offer Peace of Mind

Your child or pet will be free from harm this winter if your pool is covered with a Coverlogix safety cover. The cover is much easier to deal with than the standard tarp style winter cover. Plus it's safer and far more attractive than a standard winter cover. You'll no longer spend hours draining, cleaning, and removing your pool's winter cover in the spring. We recommend the use of safety mesh winter covers in place of your automatic cover to prevent damage to the cover and pool.

Balance Before Closing

Water Testing

It's important to balance your pool water before closing it for the winter months. Closing a pool with water that is out of balance can cause problems on the pool surface such as scaling, staining and etching. A low hardness level can cause a plaster pool surface to become sharp and uncomfortable to the touch.

A high alkalinity can lead to the pH drifting up and the water having a tendency to form scale and become cloudy.

A pool that has a low pH is on the acidic side which can damage the plaster or can wrinkle or turn a liner brittle if left unattended. A low pH can also cause damage to any metals in the pool.

A low calcium hardness level in the water can result in etching of the pool surface, corrosion of metals, staining of surface walls and heater failure.

High calcium hardness can form scale on the pool surface making it rough and uneven. It can also clog filters and reduce the pools circulation due to scale forming in the plumbing lines.

A week or two before closing we recommend bringing in a water sample from the pool. We'll run a complete test and advise you on any issues that might need addressing. It's a smart way to protect your investment.

Cyanuric Acid (Stabilizer)

If your pool's Cyanuric Acid level is above 50ppm, the Fall is a good time to drain the pool lower than normal when closing to dilute that level with a fresh water addition. Lower levels of cyanuric acid allows your chlorine to work better.
